Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of dental caries between children who had been exposed to fluoride varnish and those who had not. A total of 600 children aged 5-7 years were examined by dentists at a community health center. The results showed that the prevalence of dental caries was significantly lower in the group that had received fluoride varnish than in the control group.

Message: Why have You forsaken me, O Holy One, God, Thou who art True, O Lord, Thou alone?
